SERIOUS NONNI RIVER FIGHTING.

ALLEGED ATTACK BY CAVALRY.

JAPANESE DRIVE.

Mudken, Nov. 16.
Skirmishing at Nonni River continues while official Japanese reports declare that Chinese cavalry are now taking part in the activities and are making attacks.

Chinese reports from Harbin and other trouble centres all accuse the Japanese of initiating the offensive, while Japanese headquarters explain that their outposts at Nonni River are in contact with the Chinese position.

These outposts are equipped with three-inch guns which are reported to be busy driving off the Heilungkiang cavalry which are threatening the Japanese flanks.

Japanese Losses.
Two skirmishes took place yesterday, entailing a small number of casualties, and bringing up the Japanese losses on Thursday, Friday and Saturday to seven killed and ten wounded.

The fighting assumed more serious proportions on Sunday morning, when the Japanese command decided to dispose of the Chinese forces, and drove 4,000 of the Chinese mounted fighters several miles to the north east and captured the village of Chienkuanli, fifteen miles north-east of Nonni Bridge. Here they have established an outpost.

The casualties resulting from this affair has not yet been reported.—Reuter.

HONGKONG CURRENCY MISSION'S REPORT.

OPPOSED TO IMMEDIATE STABILISATION.

IMPORTANT RECOMMENDATIONS FOR REFORM OF SYSTEM.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL OF SILVER RESERVE.

THE REPORT of the Commission appointed by the Secretary of State to enquire into and advise upon the question of Hongkong currency was released for publication this morning.

The various matters discussed are dealt with in considerable detail and as far as possible in non-technical language.

The Mission advises against the immediate stabilisation of the dollar, recommends important changes in the management of Hongkong's currency, and the establishment of a Currency Board for the Colony.

Among the responsibilities of the proposed Currency Board would be the creation of a Sterling Fund and the taking of other steps likely to render possible an immediate change-over from a silver to a gold currency should the change, in the future, be deemed necessary. The Mission strongly opposes the stabilisation of the dollar at a figure higher than the ruling rate when the change is effected.

CREATION OF STERLING FUND.

After a brief introduction the Commissioners give an account of the events which led up to their appointment and formulate the problem under examination in the following terms:—

- (1) Whether it would be desirable to change the basis of Hongkong currency from silver to gold.
- (2) If it is not both desirable and practicable to make this change now or in the immediate future, what if any reforms in the existing currency system should be adopted.
- (3) What if any steps should be taken in preparation for a change-over to gold in the future, if for instance China "went gold" or for any other reason.

Against Immediate Stabilisation.

As regards (1) they first consider the general arguments put forward in favour of stabilisation and come to the conclusion that by far the most important matter to be considered in determining the desirability or otherwise of changing Hongkong currency to a gold standard is the effect which such a change might be expected to produce on the trade and financial business of the Colony.

They accordingly examine the effect of stabilisation on the business of Hongkong. (1) as a port, (2) as a place of law and order and a city of refuge, (3) as a producing centre, (4) as a financial and trading centre, breaking up the subject matter of (4) in its turn into 5 heads:—(a) imports into South China, (b) trade between North and South China, (c) remittances from Chinese communities overseas, (d) primary production and small trades and industries in South China, (e) exports from South China.

Their conclusion is that, while stabilisation would facilitate the conduct of certain classes of business within the Colony, it would gravely prejudice the import and export trade of South China conducted or financed through Hongkong, which is the sheet anchor of the Colony's prosperity, and would affect injuriously many other branches of business; and they therefore advise against it.

H.K. Currency's Position.

The Commissioners next describe the present currency system of Hongkong and point out that it must be considered in its relations to the currency systems of China.

After some remarks on the use of Hongkong currency in China they give an account of the functions of the Hongkong dollar as an exchange currency and draw special attention to the fact that it supplies the lack of a fully developed exchange currency in parts of South China.

Defects of Present System.

They then describe what seem to be the defects of the present currency system and make the following proposals for its reform:—

- (1) the legal tender status of the dollar coin to be limited to $10;
- (2) bank-notes to be made unlimited legal tender;

- (3) notes to be convertible into silver bullion;
- (4) notes to be obtainable for silver bullion;
- (5) Government to take charge of the silver reserves of the notes issues;
- (6) silver bullion presented in future in exchange for notes to be handed to the Government;
- (7) a Hongkong Currency Board to be set up.

Token Coins.

They then give further details of proposals relating to coin and make a suggestion that the existing issue of silver subsidiary coins should be withdrawn and replaced by an issue of base-metal token coins and then follow further details of their proposals relating to notes.

The Mission next make recommendations for the accumulation of a sterling fund by the Currency Board with the object of preparing for the ultimate conversion of Hongkong currency to a gold basis, if and when it appears desirable.

Banking Legislation.

Finally they offer some miscellaneous observations on the rate at which the dollar should ultimately be stabilized; on the question of a parallel sterling note issue, on the need for banking legislation in the Colony; and on the fixation of bullion points under their scheme and its effects on exchange speculation.

Following are extracts from the report, including the main recommendations:—

"To stabilize or not to stabilize" is to-day probably one of the most widely-debated questions in Hongkong, affecting as it does, directly or indirectly, the fortunes of nearly every section of the community.

Conversion Argument.

The argument for conversion to a gold basis is sometimes based on the view that gold is the only true measure of value. This proposition may not always have been stated in so brief and absolute a form, but it would seem to have been tacitly assumed as true by several writers in the press, and the opinion has been expressed that silver, being a commodity, is not a suitable basis for a monetary system. While, however, silver is only a commodity in terms of a gold currency, it may equally well be said that gold is only a commodity in terms of a silver currency. Few would deny the general proposition that gold is the most satisfactory measure of value which the world has yet found, but it cannot be accepted as self-evident that gold is always and for all countries the most satisfactory measure, or that the con-

SHANGHAI LEAD BY 99 RUNS.

DONALD LEACH BATS FINELY FOR 59: BOWKER IN FORM.

HONGKONG'S BIG TASK.

SOME WONDERFUL keen cricket was seen in the Interport this morning. At the tiffin adjournment, Hongkong had partially retrieved the serious position in which they found themselves on Saturday evening, Shanghai's last six wickets falling for an addition of 109 runs.

Shanghai thus led by 99 runs on the first innings, an advantage which was reduced to 82 by Simpson and Fincher who obtained 17 runs without loss before the teams went in to tiffin.

Bowker bowled with marked success, "coming off" at a critical time, while Hamilton finished off the Shanghai innings quickly on being put on, and returned an analysis of two wickets for five runs.

THIS MORNING'S PLAY DESCRIBED.

Leach (21) and Madar (31), the not outs found the wicket somewhat faster than on Saturday. Bowker opened from the Naval Yard end to Leach, who was content to play himself in. Madar faced Reid, who with his fourth delivery dislodged the batsman's stumps with a well pitched up leg break. Madar, who went in first wicket down on Saturday played a patient innings after a shaky start. 128-5-31.

Owen Hughes Drops Booth. Booth joined his captain, and offered Owen Hughes a catch at second slips off the first ball he received but the fielder made his second misjudgment of the match. Leach made the opening run of the day, hitting to cover off a full toss from Bowker. Scoring was on the slow side, the first ten minutes producing but two runs to send 130 up, the innings having been in progress two hours and 25 minutes.

Bowker sent down another maiden to Leach and during Reid's third, Booth pulled him to leg for two. A short ball from Bowker's next over was pulled to the Ladies' Pavilion by Leach. After Leach scored a single to third man.

Booth Bowled. Booth had his off stump knocked out of the ground by Bowker. The second wicket fell twenty minutes after the start.—137-6-2.

Merritt partnered Leach, who played a maiden off Reid, while the incoming batsman defended stubbornly against Bowker until a leg ball was glanced for two to pass Hongkong's score. Leach regained his 30 with a four off Reid, past point, 140 being signalled at the same time, twenty eight minutes after the resumption this morning.

With four to the leg boundary from Bowker, Merritt sent up 150 nine minutes later.

Stumping Missed.
Pearce just missed stumping Merritt off Reid, putting the wicket down but missing the ball. Bowker bowled his third maiden in seven overs to Leach after Reid had conceded a single, the batsmen playing the bowling with great caution. Reid's next over was also a maiden, Leach refusing to take any risks.

Dull Play.
The next fifteen minutes saw Shanghai playing dull cricket scoring but seven runs. The folding, however, was exceptionally good several runs being saved. With the fifth ball of his ninth over Bowker clean bowled Merritt.—157-7-8.

A single off Reid to long field gave Leach 40. Murray kept everything off his wicket but left the wide balls entirely alone. A pretty shot by Leach past point to the public stands off Bowker made the score 162 in three hours and ten minutes.

Leach's Fifty.
Reid conceded four byes and a four by Leach to the Pavilion saw 170 go up. Off Reid's fifth delivery the Shanghai captain pulled the bowler to Queen's Road and was applauded on taking his contribution past the half century mark. After Bowker had been bowling for an hour, he was taken off in favour of Pereira, whose (Continued on Page 9.)

MOTOR SMASH TRAGEDY.

YOUNG ARCHITECT KILLED.

MR. K. K. STAPLE OF PALMER & TURNER.

A terrible motor accident occurred yesterday on the island road between Deep Water and Repulse Bays.

Mr. K. K. Staple, of Messrs.
Palmer & Turner, the architects,
was severely injured and succumbed before medical aid could reach him.

The tragedy occurred at about 11 a.m. when motorists, on their Sunday outing, came upon the car,
a four-seater touring Armstrong-Siddeley, No. 193, a few hundred yards on the Deep Water Bay side of the Island Road's junction with the Repulse Bay Road. The car had fetched up violently against a tree off the outer side of the road, and Mr. Staple was lying unconscious and bleeding badly, while his companion, his sister-in-law, was attending him.
In the distressed state in which the lady, Miss Isabella Warbrick, was, it was difficult to obtain a clear account of what had happened, but apparently the car had got out of control.

The road where the mishap
occurred turns sharply and rises, and the impact with the tree must have been terrific, for the car was firmly jammed into it, the driving wheel was shattered and the windscreen glass scattered in all directions. A wheel of the car was adrift.

Lady Driving.

Mr. Staple was, it is understood,
teaching his sister-in-law to drive,
and the latter was at the wheel.
The car was proceeding from Deep Water Bay towards Repulse Bay.
Whether a wheel came off or in what other manner she lost control is unknown, but the car apparently swerved across the road, and but for the trees might have gone down the cliff into the harbour. As it was, Mr. Staple seems to have been flung into the windscreen. He was cut about the face and had a deep wound in his throat, apparently severing a blood vessel.

Miss Warbrick, who is a nurse at the Peak Hospital, managed to get Mr. Staple out of the car, and very quickly other cars began to arrive to find her greatly distressed, suffering from cuts herself and frantically endeavouring to check his bleeding.

Among the first to arrive on the scene were Mr. Thomas, of the Secretariat for Chinese Affairs,
Mr. W. G. Bree, of the Asiatic Petroleum Company, and Mr.
Howitt. The nearest house is Mr.
G. P. Lammer's ("Over Bays") and people came down from there to help. A police officer from Pokfulam was also quickly on the scene.

It was obtained to staunch Mr.
Staple's bleeding and messengers were sent to Repulse Bay and to Deep Water Bay for restoratives,
an ambulance and a doctor.
A motor ambulance was sent out from Central, and Mr.
Staple's bleeding having apparently stopped, it was considered better not to move him in a car, lest the bleeding recur, but to wait for the ambulance. He did not recover consciousness, and when the ambulance arrived, he was pronounced dead.

Miss Warbrick Injured.

Miss Warbrick herself received serious injuries to her chest through being cut by the flying glass. She was later taken to hospital.

Mr. Kenneth Kingsley Staple,
born in 1889, saw active war ser-

MOLLISON MAKES A FORCED LANDING.

Cairo, Nov. 15.
Mr. J. A. Mollison made a forced landing in a maize field near Minia, in Upper Egypt, last night.
The airman is safe, but his machine is reported to be wrecked.

The damage to Mollison's plane has forced him to abandon his attempt on a London-Cape town record.

He crossed the coastline at El Soloum, and passed over Cairo at 4 p.m. yesterday, following the Nile southward en route to Khurtoun.

The petrol pump of his reserve tank broke, and he was forced to land near Minia, 150 miles from Cairo. He was thrown out by the force of the impact; and the machine's propeller, rudder and top of the plane were smashed, putting a continuation of the flight out of the question.

Mollison has decided to have his machine repaired at Cairo, and to return to England by air.—Reuter.

GUILTY LIPS

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of "MAD MARRIAGE"

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY.

Pretty Norma Kent, 26-year-old secretary, married Mark Travers, son of F. M. Travers, millionaire estate dealer, in spite of the father's opposition and threat to disinherit Mark.

The story opens in Marlboro, middle western metropolis. Mark tells his expensive mother to get money for the honeymoon and he and Norma go to fashionable Blue Springs. There Norma meets Hollis Stone, and it is evident from the girl's manner that she has known Stone before and for some reason seems to fear him. Their money is soon gone, partly due to Mark's spending. With $500 borrowed from Stone the couple return to Marlboro. Mark sets out on a round of pleasure seeking, meanwhile, Norma is waiting. A delinquent who has long hoped to marry Mark. When their funds divide again Mark and Norma move to a cheap apartment. Mark begins to hunt work seriously. He gets one job and loses it. Then he becomes a doorwalker in Blossomdale's department store. Norma practices right economies at home. When Mark's mother comes to call on them and urges the young man to seek reconciliation with his father Mark refuses. He and Norma spend a happy Thanksgiving Day together. A few days later George Johnson, an employee of the older Travers, comes to Mark and tells him his father wants to see him. Reluctantly Mark goes to his father's office.

CHAPTER XXVIII

Travers eyed his son levelly. "When I make a bargain, I expect fair return for my money. Otherwise I'm not interested. And if you agree to what I'm suggesting I'll expect you to keep that agreement as rigidly as any business contract."

"Let's hear those terms you mentioned."

"All right. Here they are. You are to return to employment in this organization on exactly an equal footing with other employees. Your salary will be fixed on a basis of your work. If at the end of a year I am convinced you have in you the making of a real business man you will come into the company as a junior officer with a certain amount of stock to your credit. It will be a year of hard work, possibly in half a dozen different departments. I will issue strict orders no favours are to be shown you because you happen to bear my name. Well—what do you think of it?"

"Father! You honestly mean this?"

"Would I be sitting here wasting hours when I might be much more comfortable at home if I didn't mean it!"

Emotion he could not find words for overwhelmed Mark Travers. He flushed. "Gee, Dad, that's—that's white of you!" he exclaimed. "I want to tell you I've been sorry a good many times for the things I said that night—I didn't mean what I said—!"

"No? Then forget it! I've said things I didn't mean and been sorry about them. Forget it, Mark. It's been hard on your mother, though, to have you away."

"I know, I'm sorry for that too. Oh, Dad—I'll take you up on this thing! I'll show you I can make good too! You'll see that I've changed about a lot of things—!"

The elder Travers was on his feet, hand outstretched. He took Mark's hand in his and shook it firmly. "Then it's agreed," he said. "When can you start?"

"Why—why almost any time. I'll tell them I'm quitting to-morrow at Blossomdale's." The red of his cheeks deepened. "You know, I suppose, that's where I've been."

The answer was a grunt that might have been interpreted. "Heard something of the sort."

"Dad!" Mark exclaimed jubilantly. "Gee, I can't believe this has happened! I don't know what to say to you. It's—it's wonderful!"

If the elder Travers were equally moved, he restrained all signs of it. "So it's settled, then," he said, stepping back and heaving a sigh of satisfaction. "Remember those terms—one year without favours, unquestioning obedience to superiors and hard work."

"I'll show you, Dad!" Mark was grinning broadly. "Those terms—why they're nothing at all! I'll show you!"

"Fine. By the way," (the father's eye narrowed slightly as he spoke) "your first job will be something a little out of the ordinary. Not at all unpleasant, I hope. It's a little piece of special work I want you to do for me."

"What is it?"

"Sit down," Travers dropped to his desk chair, waved the young man to one beside it. "I told you if you agreed to my terms it would mean a year of hard work. You've already agreed. Today's Wednesday, isn't it? Tell them at Blossomdale's you're quitting Saturday. Monday you can begin here. Then Tuesday at midnight you sail for Liverpool."

"Dad!"

Travers was nodding. "Tuesday at midnight," he repeated. "You have your passport, haven't you?"

Returned at the previous election with a majority of 43, Sir Austen Chamberlain, who is depicted here canvassing in Birmingham West, increased that to very much more handsome figures.—(Times copyright).

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, sought his return to Parliament through the Seaham electors, and did not ask in vain. Here he is shown in the company with some of the Haswell Plough constituents.—Times Copyright.

I'll have everything else arranged. Monday you'll be in Liverpool."

"But what on earth—" Mark cut in. "I don't know what you're talking about!"

"No. But I'm going to tell you. Promised to obey instructions, didn't you? Promised to tackle any job without favouritism! This first assignment, as I said, is a little unusual. I hope it isn't going to prove difficult. Now here's what I'm getting at—!"

The father paused long enough to touch a match to his cigar. "I sent Johnson to tell you to come here today for two reasons," he continued. "One because, well, you're the only son your mother and I have. Maybe I seem a harsh man sometimes. I'm not so bad in side. Anyhow your mother and I need you, Mark. That's one reason I sent for you. The other is this business in Spain."

"You remember—maybe you don't though—that Jules was in this country for a Spanish copper mining concern when Alicia met him? Looking for American capital. Well, he persuaded me to go into the thing rather heavily. That was two years ago. Going on three now and it's been a bigger loss every year. It's come to the place where I've got to know what's going on—"

Mark had been following the words wide-eyed. "But, Dad, I don't know anything about copper mining!"

"No. You don't. It isn't going to be necessary. I've got a man who knows all about it going over next month. You see, Mark, I can stand the loss. They come and we take them and fight it out on some other line. I can stand the loss. What I'm sending you over there for is to find out just how much Jules is in on this business. I want to know if the deal is square. If it is—well go on with it and fight. If Alicia's husband in spite of his high-sounding titles is just another foreign crook I want to know that too."

"You'll go over there ahead of Moffett, the engineer. There's been nothing said or done as yet to arouse suspicion. That's why the trip must be made at this time.

And you're the one to make it. Don't you see I can't send an ordinary employee over there and tell him what's in my mind about my own son-in-law? Besides, you can go about with Jules as no employee could."

"It's a spring job you're asking me to undertake, is it?"

"Now wait a minute! Not so hot-headed. It's nothing on earth but a straight business deal. I want you to go to France for three weeks, drop over at this mine and have a look at it, go to see Jules and Alicia and make certain inquiries about Jules. It's a thing that's done every day in business. A man has to know his associate are honest. If they're dishonest

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES.

Virginia Cherrill, the beautiful blonde who is playing one of the leading feminine roles in "Girls Demand Excitement", now showing at the King's Theatre, believes that the law of averages works out to disadvantage at times.

Although she has been two years
in pictures, Miss Cherrill has never before been on the talking screen.
Due to the fact that she was engaged for two full years playing the feminine lead in Chaplin's picture,
"City Lights". During the entire two years, Miss Cherrill claims she never experienced a California cold and if she had it would not have made any great difference because she was playing that length of time in a silent picture.

In "Girls Demand Excitement"
she has her first talking role and the first week of production she annexed a cold which ended in the complete loss of her voice of three days.

"Imagine that break", moans
Miss Cherrill, but Seymour Felix, the director, is a man of a makeup to meet emergencies when they arise and he switched sequences, thereby not having to lose a day
of his scheduled shooting.

"Girls Demand Excitement" is a story of college life with the boys of the university banded against coeds, the climax coming in a sensational basket ball game almost won by the girls. John Wayne of "The Big Trail" fame plays the lead, with Marguerite Churchill
also featured.

Included in the supporting cast are such well-known actors as William Janney, Eddie Nugent, Helen Jerome Eddy, Marion Byron,
and Terrance Ray.

"Just a Gigolo."
Love and dancing lessons mix
in an hilarious comedy situation that blends with straight romance in "Just a Gigolo", in which William Haines is starring at the Queen's Theatre shortly.

Adapted from the Belasco stage hit, "Dancing Partner", the new picture presents Haines as a British nobleman who poses as a rogue in an attempt to "test" the girl he plans to marry—and who gets a slap in the face that opens the gate to his life romance.

Whimsical comedy blends with heart interest; Haines' clown delightfully, and in other parts of the picture contributes some of the finest dramatic acting of his career. Much of the charm of the original Broadway production is retained through the fact that two members of the original stage cast, Irene Purcell, who plays the heroine, and Charlotte Granville, as the mother, are in the picture.

Director Jack Conway succeeded in keeping all the stage values,
with an air of elopement, a fox hunt,
and such incidentals adding extra colour.

The cast is a notable one. Besides the two stage celebrities, it includes C. Aubrey Smith, remembered in "The Bachelor Father," who plays Haines' rich uncle; Lillian Bond in a vamp role; Maria Alba and Albert Conti as the excitable
French couple; Ray Milland, Lenore
Bushman, Gerald Fielding and Yola
Daval.

Haines' characterization is that of a young scion of British nobility, with an American background, a role unlike any in his entire career.
The humour of the play is subtle,
and Haines plays the part almost
"straight", relying on situations to win his laughs.

"The Brat."
Most screen directors, like most screen players, identify themselves with certain types of work. One will achieve a reputation for directing comedies, another for Western and "action" pictures, another for society dramas, and so on.

Some directors, however, are versatile enough to gain prominence in more than one class of picture. John Ford, for example, has been connected with the Fox organization for the past twelve years, and during that time has directed 33 films, ranging from the epic "Iron Horse" and the heart-stirring "Four Sons" which won the Photoplay gold medal as the best picture of 1928, to the riotous satire of "Up The River."

Ford's latest production, "The Brat", which begins local engagement next Wednesday at the King's Theatre is of a still different type,
the romantic comedy. With Sally O'Neill in the title role and a brilliant cast, this versatile megaphonist has turned out another success from the well known play by Maude Fulton.

Frank Albertson and Allan Dine-hart share leading honours with Miss O'Neill in "The Brat", which Sonya Lovien and S. N. Behrman adapted for the screen. William Collier, Sr. June Collyer, Virginia Cherrill and Farrell Macdonald are also featured. Mary Forbes, Albert Gran and other favourites are in the supporting cast.

WOMEN'S WORLD

FOR OUR LADY READERS.

Tailored Suits and Ensembles Head Wide Range of Styles; Shopping Clothes are Dark.

Informal afternoon costumes take a definite place in the new Paris mode. A conventional tailored suit (left) is Jean Patou's suggestion for autumn afternoons. The colour stressed is the new "caroub" brown, and the blouse is fashioned of soft cream-coloured satin. The tailored hat is of matching brown felt trimmed with a velvet ribbon finished off with a gilt metal buckle. An early afternoon ensemble (right) by Patou is of black vizogine cloth, trimmed with shaded grey astrakhan. The black felt hat has a grey and white feather motif.

[By Jean Patou.]

Paris.—The outstanding impression of the new collections is perhaps the wider range of styles set aside for afternoon wear. Whereas in previous collections there were models classified distinctly as early and late afternoon, you will find this year that the afternoon mode has become far more eclectic, with clothes to suit every possible circumstance.

The strictly tailored suit belongs obviously to the category of informal clothes but is not sufficient by so to be classed anywhere in the sports clothes department. Essentially practical, its only claim to the afternoon category is its clearly defined silhouette, its spruce aspect and the addition of the blouse that lends it fantasy and colour.

The alternative type of informal afternoon ensemble, suitable for shopping and tea in town consists of a dress and three-quarter or long coat. This type of ensemble bears a very close resemblance to a sports outfit, an illusion derived from its easy fit and simplicity of design. The slight "dress-maker" touches together with the supple fur trimming, however, place it in a category all its own. The whole effect is more studied than in any morning or sports ensemble. With these three-quarter length coats, I like the fashion of allowing them to swing from the shoulders, which conveys a hint of debonair ease.

The tailored outfit should be completed by a hat as neat and spruce as itself, but on which a slight touch of fantasy is permissible. I think a medium-brimmed shape is best suited to this type of dress. It harmonizes with the silhouette far better than anything strikingly original or daring.

The ensemble can carry a smaller shaped hat than the tailleur, but restraint in trimming and even the medium in which it is created is necessary. There are many kinds of felts that will suit this type of dress.

Dark colours are indicated for these "shopping" clothes but black is not necessarily the smartest this season. With the ensemble the fur-trimming must form a contrast. This year a great deal of light fur is used.

I am very glad that women have forsaken fur neckpieces or scarves for informal wear. As a matter of fact, the silhouette is greatly slenderized by the absence of longhaired fur bon effects. The smart woman will wear a cravat with a formal street dress, but this is now fashioned in the richest felts such as aubergine and broadtail and considerably smaller in volume.

MORE FORESIGHT.

Safety First in the Home.

Many of the accidents that occur in the home might be avoided by the exercise of more foresight, and care on the part of the mistress of the house. How often does it happen, for instance, that someone is injured by the skidding of a mat on a highly-polished and slippery floor! Yet there are non-slip polishes on the market that give perfectly satisfactory results. Your iron-monger will recommend a good brand for use on stained floors, but where linoleum and cork carpets are concerned no polish is really necessary. A daily wipe-over and an occasional scrubbing followed by a rub-over with paraffin should be all that is needed.

Then there is that window propped up by a book or piece of wood, and liable to come down with dire results on someone's fingers. Why not mend the sash cord? It isn't difficult, as the following instructions show. First of all remove the broken (lower, in this case) sash cord. (Lever out the beading strip on the side of the window, using a screw driver for the purpose. Raise the sash slightly and pull it forward out of the frame. Remove the fillet (fitted to give access to the balance weights) in the lower side of the frame, lift the fallen weight out of its casing, and unfasten the broken cord, noting carefully how it is attached to weight and sash. Measure off and make a length of new cord equal to the old, and tie a small weight by a string to one end. Slip the weighted end of the cord into the casing over the pulley at the top of the window frame, attach the balance weight, and pull it (the weight) up in the casing. Cut the cord to the right length, and fasten to the sash in exactly the same way as the old cord.

BRIGHT SILVER.

When shining silver, instead of dipping it into water after using polish, rub it through white flour and shine with a cloth.

THE FACTS.

Square facts have proved too much for Round Tables. The Conference is about to break up with the communal problem still unsettled, with the primary condition of progress, therefore, unfulfilled. An agreement might have been possible between the Hindus and the Moslems as distinct communities, but the Moslems were unwilling, the more to their credit, to desert the other Minorities. The ingenious plan advanced by Sir Geoffrey Corbett also, at one time, seemed to hold out prospects of a successful outcome, but his scheme of dividing up the Punjab so as to give Hindu, Moslem and Sikh each undisputed away in an allotted section collapsed when it was demonstrated that no part of the Punjab could be apportioned as a detachable district where Sikhs were in the majority. Thus we find the delegates preparing to return to India with the shadow of the communal problem hanging over them, and the work of the Federal Structure Committee incomplete, the members being unable to proceed in the absence of general consent to methods of electing representatives to the Federal Parliament.

Searching for an exit, the entire group of minorities settled their individual differences in the middle of last week and on Friday were able to present to the Prime Minister an agreement, covering, it was claimed, forty-six per cent. of the population of British India. The agreement had it proved acceptable to the Hindus, would have held good for a period of ten years, during which time the points of details requiring adjustment would have become apparent to all sides. Great hopes were centred upon this agreement, but in the background stood the religious antagonism of the Mahasabha, more stubborn than any other section represented at the Conference. It is easy to believe Dr. Moonie, who declared that the Mahasabha would never agree to separate electorates or to any weightage. Mr. Gandhi, meanwhile, rejects it on the score that its claims are false, that Congress, which he represents, is able to speak for between 85 and 95 per cent. of the population of all India. Against the other Indian elements, however, it is clear that the real power of Congress bears no proportion to this claim.

As a final, almost despairing effort, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald has invited the delegates to give him authority to decide their problem for them. But it is morally certain that the great organisation of Hindu orthodoxy will never surrender its claims in this way. It has persistently refused to recognise the facts. It refuses to concede even that Federations are formed only by consent. It declines absolutely to make the bold concessions which are essential to success. Hence the Conference ends in failure. The British Government may, will no doubt, set down the lines upon which the future Constitution of India will be framed. Its programme may represent a brilliant solution of an extraordinary intricate problem. But unless there is a distinct change in Hindu thought, it will prove unworkable.

South Africa and Gold.

The costly efforts of the South African Government to retain the gold standard appear doomed to failure. Present indications are that, whatever the desires of the Government regarding the future monetary basis of the country, there will be no choice of courses. Circumstances seem to conspire to force the country off gold. The position of South Africa is peculiar and not a little ironic. Last week she exported a record quantity of gold metal and almost simultaneously opened negotiations with France and Holland for a loan which would permit the country to remain on the gold standard. Now, however, both France and Holland have found they cannot pursue negotiations with South Africa and as America has already been sounded, and has asked for commission and interest terms which the would-be borrowers could not entertain, there seems practically no chance of South Africa obtaining the resources necessary for her to continue on a gold basis. General Smuts has strongly expressed the opinion that South Africa should follow the example of Northern and Southern Rhodesia which have already taken the plunge. Joint action between Great Britain and the Dominions is coming to look more possible every day. Meanwhile, the United States have ceased to suck up gold, and are disgorging it fast. But the maldistribution of the world's supply is not thereby diminished; for France and, to a lesser degree, Holland, Switzerland and Belgium, are taking all, and more than all, that America yields up. The gold standard has ceased to be an effective international standard, or to act as a stabilising influence on world finance. It is of vital importance that Britain should keep the depreciation of sterling within reasonable limits; but it is fully as important that there should be no rush back to the gold standard, even on a basis of devaluation, at least until guarantees have been secured for its better working in future.

This Fighting Business.TOM WEBSTER Explains

THANKS to prolific boxing writers of the past, I can go back to the halcyon days. I can still dig into the gore of 1870, when men were men, and possibly barges were better than barges, because infuriated robots used to fight on barges for apparently days on end, until—if we are to believe the chroniclers—"the crowd cried 'Take 'im away, take 'im away!'"

Because of a copy-book error, there has always been an idea that there is no time like the present. But a lover of real heavy-weights would, I am sure, much rather live in the past. And after one or two memorable sessions at the Albert Hall and the Halford Stadium I can hardly blame him.

But whether he be good, bad, indifferent, or very seldom foul-proof, the heavy-weight will always be the chief topic of the fighting game. No matter what their station, whether it be suburban or in the hunting district, nearly everybody loves to talk Fight. Whether they know anything about it or not—and they generally do not—they love to talk about it, and the most engrossing part of Fight to them is the heavy-weight.

Those Experts.

To me it has always been an extraordinary thing that when discussing, say, billiards, golf, cricket, tennis, football, or any other form of sport, these people never pretend to be expert.

Because I naturally see more of these games than the average onlooker, men far shorter of teeth and hair than I am will defer to my opinion, however faulty it may be.

With an "Of course you ought to know," they let an argument go without a battle. But just by opposite to them and their views on boxing, and you have come men walking the wire of pure illogicality. But you cannot tell them. Take any man to his first cricket match, his first football match, his first tennis match, and he will be modest in his ideas and dumb about his opinion. Take the same man to his first fight, and he immediately becomes a judge.

It is this primitive instinct that has made the heavy-weight the best box-office proposition in any business which calls for attraction.

Lure of the Punch.

You cannot blame the crowd. The lure of the punch, the thrill of the unexpected, will smack 'em in, though the barriers be drawn over so tightly. And who are we to criticise the crowd's mentality? Although we now and again get blase through too many curseys from Mr. Philip Scott, we still go scurrying to our seats with an over-affected air of nonchalance, because we know in our heart of hearts that the impossible may happen and a new champion be found.

It may seem to the competent observer that we are too casual at the moment, but along with the populace we are very likely only too willing and ready to shout "Eight, nine, out!"

A bovine idea of dignity, however, keeps us in our seats; but if we told the truth we could possibly scream louder than anybody.

Without being too inquisitive and picking up a calendar before our time, I suppose the first interest we can take in the present heavy-weight situation goes back to when Bob Fitzsimmons, the Cornishman, took all the breath and a lot of amusement out of Jim Corbett with a punch to the body at Carson City in 1897. Fitzsimmons won the heavy-weight title with the wallop, and it is regrettable to add that no Cornishman, or a member of any other constituency in Great Britain, has duplicated it.

Fitzsimmons held the title until June 1899, when he was knocked out in the eleventh round by James J. Jeffries. Jeffries, who was apparently something inhuman, held undisputed sway until 1906, when he retired, no doubt much to the good of the entire community.

Johnson and Willard.

Tommy Burns claimed the title until Jack Johnson cornered him in Australia in 1908 and sent conking an octave higher. Johnson held the crown until 1915, when Jess Willard doubtfully regained it for the white race. I say doubtfully because, added to the fact that Johnson subsequently stated that he sold the fight, there is a photograph on record of the negro taking the "count" and carefully shading his eyes in the moonlight from the hot Havana sun.

Jess Willard in turn, on July 4, 1919, was draped all over the floor by Jack Dempsey in what must have been the biggest massacre that ever took place in the ring. Willard was a monster, but Dempsey had him silly from the first punch and won in three rounds.

Dempsey successfully defended the title against Billy Miske, Bill Brennan, Georges Carpentier, and Tom Gibson. The long period of idleness caused him to lose his championship to Gene Tunney at Philadelphia in 1926. In a subsequent battle Dempsey again lost to Tunney, after having the latter on the verge of a knock-out. This was the fight which is known as the battle of the "long count."

Through Dempsey not going to a neutral corner when Tunney went down the referee gave the latter a 15-second count. I was not present at that fight, so I will not be dogmatic or authoritative, but I shall always go down to what ever deathbed is selected for me with a firm conviction that Dempsey that night regained his title. Gene Tunney had no trouble with his one contender, the game Tom Heeney, and then Tunney retired.

Out of a maelstrom of possibilities, impossibles, and probabilities, Jack Sharkey and Max Schmeling met for the crown on June 12, 1930. Sharkey hit Schmeling with everything except an estate agent, and then lost on a foul. Schmeling outstayed everybody this year by stopping Young Stribling, and still remains in possession of a prize that has defied some of the greatest fighters in history.

Now what of Schmeling? He has improved beyond recognition. His challengers are not many. They consist of Sharkey, Mickey Walker, and Carnera. Carnera, I think, be left on one side until he has grown a little more. Walker has unquestionable courage, but is perhaps too small. Sharkey is undoubtedly the Shadow in Schmeling's path. They may meet next year. Sharkey is the better boxer and a deadly hitter, but he is getting older.

Although Schmeling will progress at the same rate, he will still have the jump on Sharkey in the matter of years.

Now, having completed the above brief history, let us come to the never-ending argument as to what Jeffries, Johnson, Peter Jackson, or Bob Fitzsimmons would have done with the present generation.

I can see and feel old-timers leaping at my throat at this moment when I say, on sifted evidence and on what I saw with my own eyes, that Jack Dempsey must have been the greatest of them all. All right, nurse, take that foaming old gentleman of 1880 away from the bedside, I'm coming round.

The Hollywood Hi-Lights International Revue delighted crowded houses on Saturday and Sunday nights when they gave repeat performances of the first night's programme. It is to the credit of the Company that they are able to sustain a very long programme and at the same time not permit the audience to relax at any time. The Revue is being again presented to-night and, with the popularity secured, there should be again a bumper house.

HONGKONG CURRENCY MISSION'S REPORT.

among the Chinese population of Hongkong and the neighbouring areas silver has been accepted for generations as the measure of value, so that what its advocates describe as "stabilization" would from the Chinese point of view be "destabilization."

Nevertheless it cannot be denied that there are several arguments which have been or may be adduced in favour of a gold standard for Hongkong, and which are not without validity so far as they go.

It is true, in the first place, that the gold price of silver has fallen so low as to make its use as a currency very inconvenient. There is no doubt as to the cumbersomeness of the large silver dollar for daily private transactions, and the cost to banks and other institutions of "shredding" large quantities of coin and of storing silver in the form of either coin or bullion is an expensive item. It is, however, possible to get over these difficulties to a great extent, and we think that this will be done if the plan which we recommend is adopted.

H.K. and China.

It is true, again, that China is the only important country now left on a silver basis, while practically the whole of the rest of the world is, or is trying to place itself, on a gold basis; and that so long as Hongkong remains on silver, the fluctuations in the price of that metal in relation to gold, which have been and may continue to be frequent and rapid, will result in disturbing fluctuations in the level of Hongkong's exchanges with the gold world. On the other hand, the establishment of a gold standard in Hongkong would cause similar fluctuations in its exchanges with China, and the question really resolves itself into that of determining, having regard to her special economic and financial relations with China, which is the more important for Hongkong, that exchange should be kept steady with China or with the rest of the world.

Government's Position.

Since the prosperity of Hongkong is dependent on its trade and financial business, it is mainly a question of how that business would be affected by a change-over to a gold or sterling standard. We regard this as one of the most important factors to be considered in solving what we have described as the first part of the problem that has been put before us.

Another argument often adduced in favour of stabilization is the ease it would give to the Government's finances. The fact of Hongkong's currency being on a silver standard necessarily creates difficulties in the balancing of the yearly budget, owing to the uncertainty of the dollar sterling charges, viz. the cost of supplies purchased in England, the sterling debt obligations, and the payments of pensions and salaries of European officers. These are of course real difficulties, and they would all be met by stabilization. Important as they are, however, it does not appear to us that they can be allowed to weigh as determining factors in the decision on the question of advantage or disadvantage to the business of the Colony as a whole is in the opposite scale.

Effects of Stabilization on Business.

Reviewing what we have written on the effects which the stabilization of the Hongkong currency while China still remained on a silver basis would have on the various business activities of Hongkong, we may sum up as follows:

(1) Hongkong, considered merely as a port and as the principal storehouse for goods in transit to and from South China, would not be likely to be affected adversely so long as trade continued to run in its present channels.

(2) The special position which Hongkong at present occupies for the Chinese settler and capitalist as a place of law and order and a city of refuge would to a large extent be lost.

(3) As a producing centre, it might lose to neighbouring silver centres much of the business which it at present transacts, but on the other hand ship-builders would undoubtedly benefit in so far as the change would enable them to tender for and carry out large long-term contracts on a basis of equality with their competitors in gold-using countries.

Loss of Exchange Business.

(4) As a financial and trading centre, the effects on Hongkong would be as follows:

(a) In relation to imports into South China, the onus of covering the heavy gold-silver exchange risks involved would be transferred from the importing merchant in Hongkong, who has ample facilities for doing this, to the dealer in South China, who owing to its imperfectly developed currency system would, with Hongkong on a gold basis, have no means for the purpose. On the other hand, while bulk indent business and depot business (including retail trade in Hongkong) would to some extent be facilitated, the wholesale trade would lose its present facilities for covering the gold-silver exchange risk and would not be able to find a substitute. The trend of the argument in this section depends upon the relative importance of these different kinds of business, and as all the evidence goes to show that the wholesale importing business into South China is one of the mainstays of Hongkong's prosperity we have no hesitation in deciding that on this count the argument is strongly against stabilization.

Remittance Business.

(b) In relation to the remittance business, much of Hongkong's attraction as a centre for receiving remittances from Chinese residents overseas would disappear.

(c) The present easy flow of capital between Hongkong and South China which is instrumental in financing primary production and small trades and industries in South China would be seriously impeded.

The general tenor of the conclusions set out above in our opinion that Hongkong is economically part of China and must remain on a silver standard so long as China does.

Serious Disadvantage.

Although from the point of view of the Government and of some persons not engaged in trade it seems that there would be certain distinct advantages to be obtained from stabilization on a gold basis, and although certain trading interests would benefit thereby, we are unable to arrive at any other conclusion than that it would be of serious and direct disadvantage to the business of Hongkong and to large sections of the population. Consequently in the general interests of the Colony—including those of traders who, though they might reap immediate benefit from this course, would probably find the results in the long run by no means satisfactory—we recommend that the present circumstances Hongkong should remain on a silver basis.

The present Currency System.

With the decision not to recommend present stabilization we have disposed of the first main part of our problem and we turn to the second, namely, what if any reforms in the existing currency system should be adopted.

The notes of the Hongkong Bank, and particularly those of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, circulate widely throughout South China where they are regarded as the most stable and desirable form of currency. Indeed it was represented to us by credible witnesses that no less than two-thirds of the outstanding issue of the bank was held in China, and one of our Chinese witnesses expressed the view that it was known in all the eighteen provinces of China. In Shantung, the foreign concession of Canton, it is the only currency used.

While Hongkong bank-notes are in great favour as the most stable form of silver currency in South China, it is difficult to say how the British Dollar is regarded as a currency medium outside the limits of the Colony. It appears to be in circulation in some parts of China, especially in the north. In other part it circulates merely as bullion. In Canton it and the subsidiary coin of Hongkong are freely accepted at an appropriate premium over Canton money.

Defects.

We have now to draw attention to certain fundamental defects in the currency system. The first is that the form of currency which is the only unlimited legal tender, the silver dollar, is entirely unsuitable for that purpose.

A concrete example will illustrate this. The weight of the legal tender currency which the seller of a motor-car costing say $4,000, (at the present rate of exchange, about $200) could demand, would be a little over two hundredweight.

It is true that the issue of bank-notes has to a large extent got round this defect; it has, however, created others.

The chief one is that while there is an automatic contraction of the volume of the currency as soon as its exchange value drops to the lower bullion point (that is, the point at which it pays to export silver dollars for sale as bullion) there is no satisfactory automatic method of expanding the currency when the exchange value of the dollar rises.

Expansion of Issue.

The expansion may take the form of an increase in the volume of notes or of coin.

As to notes, only one of the three note-issuing banks has unlimited powers of expanding its circulation, viz., the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, but it is under no statutory obligation to do so.

As to coin, there is an almost insuperable obstacle to its volume expanding at all times sufficiently to meet the public needs in the cumbersomeness of the legal tender dollar coin. To buy silver and have it minted and imported sounds quite a simple process, but it is impossible, because they know that, after heavy expenses for minting and transport have been incurred, the coin will not be wanted by the public and further large charges for storing and handling them will have to be met. Moreover, they run the risk that they themselves may have to use the coins largely in their daily transactions instead of bank-notes, and this would so seriously dislocate business that they would go to great lengths to avoid the risk.

H.K. and S.R.

It should be recognized that the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank has, except for a brief period some two years ago, always performed the valuable service, as the chief note-issuing bank of the Colony, of providing the public with an adequate amount of currency. But the fact that in that brief period, owing to the bank's unwillingness to expand its currency commensurately with the amount of deposits pouring from abroad into the Colony, the Hongkong dollar rose to about 20 per cent. above silver parity, shows clearly the faultiness of the present system.

At the time referred to, the non-note-issuing banks were at length forced to apply the exchange corrective of importing silver dollars and in one way or another the position was eased but the Colony was thus loaded up with a large quantity (it is said as much as 800 tons) of unnecessary coin. We understand that the present Chief Manager of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank has announced as the policy of the bank that it will in future always apply an exchange corrective with the object of preventing the dollar from rising substantially above the theoretic upper bullion point. It is, however, fundamentally wrong that the exchange value of the Colony's currency should depend on one person, and no less wrong that that person should be put in a position where he may constantly have to decide between the conflicting interests of the Colony and the bank.

Main Proposals for Reform.

As it seems to be unquestionable that the Colony already contains more dollar coins than it can ever require for use in active circulation we have sought for some automatic method of increasing the amount of notes in circulation when required.

It is obvious that there are two ways in which this might be provided, either by a suitably regulated issue of Government currency notes, or by altering the present conditions of issue of bank-notes. The first step can be taken by the Government at its own discretion; the second requires the willing co-operation of the note-issuing banks.

We should recommend the first alternative only if the banks refused that co-operation. As we have said above, the bank-note is the de facto currency of the Colony and of a great part of South China, and any step which might impair the prestige of that note should be avoided. Rather would we recommend that its prestige should be increased by making it the sole unlimited legal tender in the Colony and limiting the legal status of the dollar coin.

Legal Tender.

These then are our recommendations:

(1) that the legal tender status of the dollar coin be limited to $10.

(2) that the notes of the present note-issuing banks be made the sole unlimited legal tender, except of course by the banks themselves in payment of notes tendered for redemption.

With a limit imposed on the legal tender status of the dollar coin some other means of providing for the convertibility of the bank-note has to be found. Here an analogy with the position in England will help us. By the Gold Standard Act of 1925, Bank of England notes are convertible not as before the war into sovereigns, but into gold bullion on presentation of a minimum quantity of bank-notes, and we recommend:

(3) that the notes of the Hongkong Bank be made convertible, on presentation of a prescribed minimum, into silver bullion.

Bullion Exchange.

The lower bullion point is thus provided. In order to establish an effective upper bullion point, the absence of which has been the root cause of the present Hongkong currency, we recommend:

(4) that any person on tendering silver bullion of a specified minimum fineness and of a specified minimum weight and on payment of a specified fee should be entitled to obtain legal tender, in the form of bank-notes.

Government Control.

In order to relieve the note-issuing banks of the liability to receive and store an unlimited quantity of silver bullion, we recommend further:

(5) that Government should take charge of all the silver coin and bullion at present held against the note issues, except for such amounts as the three banks concerned may require for current business, and give to the banks in lieu thereof vouchers undertaking to deliver silver on demand on the bank's certifying that notes for an equivalent amount have been or are about to be withdrawn; and

(6) that silver which in future may be tendered for exchange into notes should be received by the Government (not the note-issuing bank), the tenderer to be entitled to receive notes of whichever bank he may prefer (provided that that bank's issue has not reached its maximum limit) and the bank to be given vouchers for the equivalent amount of silver.

Currency Board.

The Government would no doubt find it convenient to appoint a Currency Board to take charge of the silver and to make any arrangements to receive and issue silver in the future. Such a board would also have the more important function of accumulating a sterling fund to provide for ultimate stabilization on a gold basis as will be explained in Part V below. We therefore recommend:

(7) that a Hongkong Currency Board should be appointed.

It would be in accordance with usual precedent that this Board should be set up in London and should be represented in the Colony by a Currency Officer, who might appropriately be the Colonial Treasurer.

Note Issues.

The arrangements which we propose will not in any way impair the position of note issues. On the contrary they will have the added prestige, enjoyed by few banks, of issuing a note which is unlimited legal tender.

Secondly, they will be relieved of all further anxiety regarding the custody of the metallic reserve in their bank-note security funds, and will be given an assurance that the part of their reserves which consists of undertakings by the Currency Board to provide bar silver (hereinafter referred to as silver vouchers) will be converted into undertakings by that Board to provide sterling at the new rate of the dollar, should Hongkong currency ever be stabilized in terms of sterling.

Thirdly, the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank will have an assurance, which it does not at present possess, that whatever the dimensions to which its note issue expands it will not be involved in loss by such expansion.

Bank Co-operation.

We have therefore framed our recommendations on the assumption that the note-issuing banks will be prepared to fall in with the scheme which we propose.

Should this unfortunately not be so, we think the only course would be for the Currency Board to issue currency notes, such notes to be the sole, unlimited legal tender on the same conditions and under the same arrangement mutatis mutandis as we have recommended for the banks.

The machinery would be different but the general principles would be the same, and we therefore do not think it necessary to pursue the matter further.

The following questions of detail arise in connexion with the operation of the new schemes:

1. The silver content of the new theoretical unit.

2. The weight and fineness of the silver bar in which it is to be embodied.

3. The place or places at which the Board should hold and be ready to deliver and accept delivery of bar silver.

4. The minimum transaction to be permitted.

5. The commissions to be charged by the Board.

Recommendations.

Our recommendations briefly are as follows:—

1. 374.4 grains of fine silver.

2. Decision to be left to the Currency Board.

3. Hongkong and possibly Shanghai and London.

4. For the redemption of notes, the nearest equivalent of one standard silver bar; for the issue of new notes, $20,000 or even more.

5. A maximum of 5 per cent. on the issue of new notes against silver and certain minor commissions.

Preparations for Ultimate Stabilization.

We now come to the third main part of our problem, namely, what steps should be taken to

ARGYLLS' GRIP ON LEADERSHIP.

DOUBLE VICTORY OVER BORDERERS.

TEN GOALS FOR KOWLOON.

By "Wanderer."

The Argylls strengthened their position as leaders of the Senior and Second Divisions of the H.K. Football League on Saturday by convincing wins over the South Wales Borderers. The senior game resulted in a win by three clear goals, thanks largely to their greater efficiency in the goal area.

Kowloon netted ten times against St. Joseph's without stretching themselves, while the Club almost saved a point from their tussle with the Navy, who were badly rattled towards the end.

The results were:

Senior Division.
Club	2 Navy
Kowloon	10 St. Joseph's
Argylls	3 Borderers
Recreio	0 Police

R.A.O.C.	2 12th Bty.

ARGYLLS WIN KEEN STRUGGLE.

Borderers Wenk in Front of Goal.

The Argylls employed more direct methods and were worthy winners of a keen encounter. The wingers were lively and the inside forwards shot hard and often, McTavish again playing a conspicuous part. The Borderers were responsible for some very clever moves and pretty footwork, but their finishing lacked punch.

There was no scoring in the opening half, the defenders dominating. The forwards found the ball difficult to control on an uneven surface and fell easy victims to keen tackling. After the interval, the Argylls settled down to sounder tactical methods, mastered the difficulties, and scored three times through McTavish (two) and Wylie. The Borderers were very persistent, but hostile made some capital saves while he was brilliantly covered by Henderson, who had a great day. Davis, the Borderers inside right, played below form and the attack suffered further through the inability of Harris to get his centres over with his usual accuracy.

The Argylls defenders, on the whole, played more confidently than Morrison, Mullane, Eynon and their colleagues.

CLUB RALLY TOO LATE.

Navy Hard Put to It to Hold on to Lead.

In a game replete with thrills, the Navy established a lead of 3-1 on their merits, but were very hard put to it to avert a breakdown in the closing stages. A chance goal from Strange instilled new life into the Club team and so strongly and enthusiastically did they apply pressure that the relief when the final whistle blew was all on the Navy side.

Both goalkeepers had plenty to do. All the forwards showed a readiness to shoot; if anything, they were a little too eager at times, the range of their shots giving Clucas and Rodger plenty of time to judge the flight of the ball.

In the early stages, the Navy halves smothered the Club attack, which showed a decided weakness on the left, but the home side were on level terms at the interval. Howe netting brilliantly to nullify Langmead's snap goal in the first minute.

Excellent constructive play by the Navy backed up by Skinner's superb work on the left wing, rocked the Club defence in the second half and Langmead netted twice to put the result, as it proved, beyond doubt. The Club forwards in this period were slow. Howe assumed out of touch, and only on the right wing was danger really threatening. Then Strange got his goal and the game underwent a complete change.

Clucas was kept exceedingly busy, the backs showed signs of shakiness under pressure, but the equaliser refused to come.

Segalen was outstanding for the Club. He performed remarkably well against the Navy's most dangerous wing and he found time to play his forwards with beautiful accuracy. Skinner also showed up well as an attacking

The match resulted in a victory for Macao by three goals to nil. The Portuguese netted two in the first half and added a third after the interval.

half, but he failed to hold Langmead.

ST. JOSEPH'S SWAMPED.

Kowloon Let Them Off Lightly.

Kowloon scored six goals in the first twenty-five minutes, walking through the St. Joseph's defence with the greatest of ease. They lacked off noticeably in the second half, indulging in pattern-weaving, and the final score was 10-3.

Timberlake netted four times (three of them being perfect goals) Duncan claimed three, and Dominy, Hedley and Ineson completed the tally.

Hollywood, thanks largely to the good work of a line of forwards who suggested that they might be capable of better things with a sound defence behind them, scored three goals for St. Joseph's from close range. Two of them were obtained in swift raids with Kowloon's defenders caught up the field joining the attack. The first came as the result of a delightfully pretty passing movement in which Hollywood and Leonard took the chief roles.

St. Joseph's defence was wretched. The half-backs were completely overrun, the backs tried hard but were drawn out of position time and again, while the Souza, in goal, seemed listless after the fourth goal had passed him.

In the circumstances, all the Kowloon players looked to be in brilliant form. They were never seriously tested.

POLICE ON TOP.

Poor Efforts at Scoring.

The Police captured both points from their game with the Recreio, scoring twice without reply. The Recreio fielded a weak side and were overplayed, but wild shooting by the Police attack enabled the Recreio to emerge without suffering a debacle.

The Recreio backs were faulty, their half-backs disoriented and their forwards unable to make much headway in the absence of good passes.

The Police were sound in defence, but their forwards could not settle down to anything like reasonably good combination. "Kick and run tactics" was the general order of the day and this produced two goals (from Pike and Williams) when the territorial advantage established was sufficient to have produced half a dozen.

FANLING'S NEW RACECOURSE.

SUCCESSFUL OPENING YESTERDAY.

PATRONS PLEASED.

The opening of the new Kwant racecourse at Fanling yesterday attracted a very large attendance, and an excellent afternoon of sport was enjoyed.

Complete satisfaction was expressed with the very fine work put in by Messrs. W. T. Stanton, D. Wilson and E. M. Hazeland in this connexion.

YACHT CLUB.

Favourable weather conditions attended the opening regatta of the Royal Hongkong Yacht Club, which was held on Saturday afternoon. The Commodore, Mr. E. W. Carpenter, O.B.E., expressed his regret that Canton and Manila could not participate in the regatta, but said he was glad to say that there was every prospect of their being present at the closing cruise.

The results of the sailing were:

The following won prizes for lawn bowls.—Messrs. A. T. Hamilton, W. Hansen, W. Macfarlane and Dr. Shullhear.

The Races.

Only two crews, Ewo and Hongkong Electric, contested in the Hornell Cup, and the race was a good one.

The start was all that could be desired. Ewo striking 30 and the H.E.C. 32. Ewo steadily drew ahead and at the half mile mark had established a lead of two lengths. The H.E.C. then made a spurt and reduced this lead to 1 1/2 lengths in which position the boats crossed the finishing line.

Nine crews lined up at the start for the race for 25 ft. whalers and the result was in doubt till the last minute as there was only a matter of three or four lengths between first and last boats most of the way over the course, but on nearing the finishing line, the boats from H.M.S. Scraph, Bruce and Sepoy drew ahead and crossed the line in this order. H.M.S. Scraph winning by two lengths.

Ten crews turned out for the race for 27 ft. whalers and after a good start the boats soon spread out. The three crews to cross the line first were H.M.S. Kent and Berwick, Kent "A" winning by two lengths.

Minett Sculling Cup.

The entrants for this event were: H. W. Dulle, M. Hailton, and J. E. L. Parry. An excellent start was made but Dulle soon established a slight lead and at the half way mark was two lengths up on Hailton the latter being one length ahead of Parry. The distance between boats gradually increased and the line was crossed in the above order.

Percy Smith Challenge Cup for Pairs.

Red striking the slower rate, 30 as against White's 34, soon took the lead which was gradually increased until the line was crossed four lengths ahead of White.

DEFEAT AT LAST.

SPRINGBOKS BEATEN IN THIRTEENTH MATCH.

London, Nov. 14.

The South African (Springbok) rugby tourists have at last been defeated!

To-day they met Leicester and East Midlands in their thirteenth match of the tour, and lost by 30 points to 21.—Reuter.

RUGBY FOOTBALL.

ARMY OUTPLAYED BY THE CLUB.

The Hongkong Club displayed their best form of the current season on Saturday, when they met and defeated the Army by three goals and four tries (27 points) to a goal and a try (6 points). Throughout the game the Club were vastly superior, although the Army were unfortunate to lose the services of Lieut. Keith-Murray, who was injured and had to leave the field.

The outstanding players were Dr. Selby and G. P. Lammer. The former gave a brilliant exposition of the scrum half game, while Lammer ran with great power. His four tries were the result of his completely baffling the defence, and it was one of his most successful days in local football.

The teams were: Army.—L/Cpl. Frankham; Lt. Douglas, Pto. Stevens, Lt. Richardson, Lt. Keith-Murray; Lt. Younger and L/Cpl. Costello; Lt. Prior, Lt. Grayham, L/Cpl. Tratt, L/Cpl. McPhillip, L/Cpl. Suter, Pto. Lloyd, Pto. Gilmore, Pto. Walters.

Club.—S. J. H. Fox; G. P. Lammer, R. H. Griffiths, M. W. Turner, C. J. D. Law; L. G. Robertson and J. A. R. Selby; E. F. Butters, J. H. McElroy, G. G. Moutrey, F. R. Birch, W. E. Peers, B. P. Massey, G. S. Devonshire, D. McLeellan.

Referee.—Eng. Commander Whillson.

KOWLOON LUCKY.

Have Worst of Exchanges But Defeat Hermes.

Kowloon were distinctly fortunate to beat H.M.S. Hermes by 6 points to three at King's Park on Saturday, the sailors enjoying the better of the exchanges, but failing to force home advantages.

Weakness in the forward line robbed the Hermes of several chances of scoring, while Kowloon seized theirs in fine style, and because of this deserved to win.

The teams were: Kowloon.—L. D. Skinner; R. J. Ferguson (captain), G. C. Burnett, D. Black, T. S. D. Whitley; D. F. Kilby, D. J. S. Crozier; J. E. Wilson, Dr. Cogan, G. G. Bonham, J. Riddell, S. Macdonald, S. Hardy, L. W. Tippet, and A. Eastbrook.

Hermes.—Slater; Scott, Stewart, Ward, Brown; F/Lt. Colquhoun, Lt. Chareley; Wright, Lea, Yarnall, Sheppard, Hamilton, Whiting, Baker, and Edwards.

BRILLIANT SOUTH AFRICANS.

COMpletely OUTPLAY NEW SOUTH WALES.

Sydney, Nov. 14.

The South Africans continued to outplay New South Wales when the match between the teams was continued here to-day.

The tourists eventually scored 425 in their first innings, H. G. Taylor batting extremely well in compiling 125.

The Australians failed to withstand the keen attack of the visitors, and were dismissed for 168. Don Bradman scored 30, McCabe 37 and Fairfax 3. Bell and McMillan wrought the damage, the former capturing four wickets for 86 runs, and his colleague 4 for 52.

The South Africans did not enforce the follow-on, and before the close had scored eleven runs without loss in their second venture at the wicket.—Reuter.

SHANGHAI LEAD BY 99 RUNS.

15th ball was sent by Leach to Chatter Road, 180 being signalled in two hours and 15 minutes.

Richardson Punished.

Richardson was brought on in place of Reid at the Law Courts end and Murray opened with a four to leg from a no ball followed immediately by a boundary to Queen's Road. After scoring a single and sending up the 130, Murray pulled Richardson to the Public Stands, scoring fourteen in the over.

Leach Out.

Leach scored a single off Percina and off Richardson's second delivery he skied one to the Public Stands but Simpson took a beautiful catch to dismiss the Shanghai captain, who had been at the wicket for an hour and 36 minutes. 195-8-59.

Murray, who was partnered by Isaac, singled Richardson to leg and 200 was hoisted after the innings had been in progress three hours and twenty five minutes.

Richardson was brought on in place of Reid at the Law Courts end and Murray opened with a four to leg from a no ball followed immediately by a boundary to Queen's Road. After scoring a single and sending up the 130, Murray pulled Richardson to the Public Stands, scoring fourteen in the over.

Leach Out.

Leach scored a single off Percina and off Richardson's second delivery he skied one to the Public Stands but Simpson took a beautiful catch to dismiss the Shanghai captain, who had been at the wicket for an hour and 36 minutes. 195-8-59.

Murray, who was partnered by Isaac, singled Richardson to leg and 200 was hoisted after the innings had been in progress three hours and twenty five minutes.

Isaac Hits Out.

Owen Hughes relieved Richardson and his first ball was sent to Chatter Road by Isaac. Murray snicked Percina through the slips to the boundary, 210 going up in three hours and 35 minutes. Isaac treated Owen Hughes with scant respect and sent the first two balls of his second over into Chatter Road, instantly registering the 220. Isaac opened his shoulders to Percina and scored a four past point.

Hamilton at point stopped a hard one from Murray off Percina and unceremoniously aimed at the stumps with the batsman out of his crease but conceded a four, making Shanghai's total 230, completed in three hours and 45 minutes.

Hamilton Finishes Off.

Pearce made another double change, Bowker replacing Owen Hughes and Hamilton taking the New Year end. Isaac had the misfortune to play on Hamilton's third ball—233-5-24.

Wilson sent the first ball he received to fine leg for four but was well taken by Owen Hughes in the slips off the next ball, the innings coming to an end at 12.10 p.m. for 237 runs.

HONGKONG'S SECOND KNOCK.

Fincher and Simpson Stay Till Tiffin.

Simpson and Fincher again opened for Hongkong, the former defending the Naval yard end against Isaac. Wilson went at the opposite end. Isaac's second over was scoreless, three runs accruing from the first three overs. Simpson punished a loose one from Wilson and with a single off the next ball the first ten was signalled in 13 minutes. Simpson was playing pretty cricket and had scored nine to Fincher's one.

Wilson's third over was a maiden. The first change was made after but six overs. Booth being put on for Isaac at the Law Courts end. He had Fincher defending and bowled a maiden. Madar took the ball from Wilson and conceded four, byes.

A Chance.

Leach went on for Booth and took the last over before tiffin, Simpson giving a difficult chance off the last ball.

The score at the adjournment was 17 for no wicket, and of these Simpson claimed 11 and Fincher one.

SATURDAY'S PLAY DESCRIBED.

SHANGHAI'S SOUNDNESS WITH BAT AND BALL.

(By "Mid-off").

The midweek rain had left the wicket on the soft side for the opening of the match on Saturday, and the visitors must have considered themselves fortunate to find a pitch of "similar" pace to many of their own in Shanghai.

Certainly it was the first of its kind we have seen in Hongkong this season, with the result that Pereira, from whom much was expected, was yards slower than the Pereira we knew in the past few weeks.

Throughout the day the pitch played truly. Kermani ducked once to escape a bumping ball from Hamilton, and Madar received a rap on the knuckles, but apart from these two instances, the batsmen could not complain about the wicket.

Hongkong's Best.

The best batting in the Hongkong innings came from the open-

CORRESPONDENCE.

S. P. C. A.

[To the Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.]

Sir,—on behalf of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, I have to thank all those who have contributed to our Annual Financial Drive. The result has been very gratifying considering the depressed conditions which exist and, while we are very much short of previous years' contributions, the support is encouraging, to those who take an active part in this work. To any who may have been overlooked by our collectors, and who feel disposed to contribute to our funds will you please send on your donation, however small, to our Hon. Secretary, Mr. F. W. Maund, c/o Thomson & Co., York Building. I would like to state that the membership subscription is two dollars per year, on this sum being sent to our Secretary, a Book of Rules and Badge will be forwarded. Those desiring to become Life Members of the Society can do so by contributing the sum of $50. It may appear to members that, with these fees, the necessity for a financial drive is uncalled for, but I would like to point out that the amount derived from members' subscriptions is inadequate to maintain all our activities and keep two inspectors. Therefore we are greatly indebted to those Ladies who give of their time to collect from the various concerns—no light task, I am sure you will agree. I have also to thank the Press for their valuable assistance in publishing donations, and trust that in the future, as in the past, the Society will have the support of all animal lovers. Thanking you for your favour, I remain, Yours faithfully, J. RUSSELL, Hon. President.

ing partnership between Simpson and Fincher. Simpson, knowing the wiles of the Shanghai attack, began with confidence and treated the bowling on his merits, and before the game was 25 mins. old, he had taken three 4's off Wilson, two being full-tosses on the body which he pulled to square leg, and the third a half volley which he drove to the long-on boundary.

His partner Fincher, did what was expected of him, he remained patiently at the wicket, taking the sting out of the attack, until 12.15.

Inexcusable Collapse.

After the lunch interval, the Hongkong innings became a procession, seven wickets falling for an additional 29 runs. Granted that Leach and Booth bowled well, on a wicket, a little faster perhaps than before the adjournment, one nevertheless would have expected to see the bowling, the chief merit of which was good length, played better than was the case.

Credit must be given to Booth, who took wickets and placed a check on the free scoring which had featured the play before lunch.

The Shanghai bowling was, in fact, very steady throughout, though Wilson was inclined to become erratic in length. Isaac opened steadily with several excellent overs, and would have enjoyed the conditions he exploits so well in Shanghai.

Shanghai's fielding was uniformly good, and of Coward, it need only be said that he showed, as first-class wicket keeping.

With the wicket rolling out easy, the visitors experienced no difficulty in containing with the Hongkong attack, and had 53 runs on the board before Bowker caught the umpire's eye with an l.b.w. appeal.

Madar and Leach.

"Pat" Madar, the Fincher of the Shanghai eleven, profited by an early escape, remained to the close. His rate of scoring could only be described as sober, but he showed a straight bat, and appears to have added a useful leg shot to his repertoire.

After three wickets had fallen fairly quickly, Leach took the crease obviously with the idea of remaining in at all costs, but this did not deter him from collecting 21 runs in facile style.

he has to out-smart them. Well, that's a very brief outline. We'll go over the whole thing in detail later. You're working for me on this job, Mark. Directly under my orders and no one else!"

Mark met his glance. "No use to pretend I know what it's all about," he said, "but I'll try to do what you want. How long will I be abroad?"

"That depends. Ought to make the trip, I should say, in a month or five weeks. We'll see how it works out."

The young man was smiling. "Well, a month in France is certainly no hardship. He able to stop over a day or so in Paris, will it?"

Say—I'll get a kick out of showing Norma Paris!"

The father pursed his lips. "Certainly you can spend a day or two in Paris. Matter of fact, on the surface this journey is to appear a pleasure trip. You're to do all the things you would if you were on vacation. Jules and Alicia will assume that's why you're there. On this other matter of taking—er, Norma—well, I'm afraid that's out of the question."

"But, Dad—?"

"It will be better for you," his father went on evenly, "and also for your wife if you make this trip alone. In the first place, though you are to seem to be on a pleasure trip, you will really be working. It's a conviction of mine that a man can't keep his mind on business when he's travelling with his wife. Arbitrary ruling of the company. If I let you take Norma along it would be favoritism and I told you there was to be none. On the other hand, she can be more comfortable here. We'll see that everything is done for her. It would please your mother if she'd come to the house and stay with us while you're gone. When this year's ended and you've proven you know how to work—if you do—you and she can take a three or four months' trip abroad and do it properly."

Mark said slowly. "I hate to leave her but, as you say, it may be best. Five weeks is a long time though—"

"Why, five weeks is nothing! Well—do you think you understand your first assignment?"

"Enough to say I'll tackle it. I'll be tied up at the store until Saturday, of course. When will you go over the whole thing with me?"

"On Monday. Monday morning. By the way, your mother and I would like to have you and Norma come to dinner Saturday evening."

Mark's eyes brightened. "You know what time it's getting to be? Look at that clock!"

The dial of the handsome bronze timepiece on the book case indicated it was after 6:30.

"Norma'll be phoning the police!" Mark exclaimed. "I'd better call her right away." He picked up the telephone from his father's desk and gave the number. Presently he was saying into the mouthpiece, "I'm on my way home, Norma. Everything's O. K. Got a lot to tell you. No, it will have to wait until I get there. It's good news, though. Wonderful! See you in half an hour. Bye!"

The elder Travers was standing, hat and overcoat on. "Harvey's downstairs with the car," he announced. "Run you out?"

"Thanks. It'll be a big favour."

On the threshold—just before they left the room—Mark turned and clapped a hand on his father's arm. "Dad," he said, fumbling for the words, "I wish I could tell you how I appreciate all this—"

"That's all right!"

The interview was ended. The pair sauntered down the corridor to the elevator car. Throughout the drive to the east side apartment their talk was of irrelevant subjects.

The big limousine paused long enough for Mark to step to the sidewalk, then darted away. Thirty minutes later F. M. Travers was relinquishing his hat and coat to a servant.

"Where's Mrs. Travers?" he asked.

"I think she's in her room, sir. She said dinner would be at 7:30."

"Yes, of course."

Travers mounted the stairs heavily. He was not unusually stout, rather well built for one of his years, but he had worked hard all his life and moved customarily as though he were tired.

Before a door at the head of the stairs he paused and knocked. A voice inside called "Who is it?"

"It's I, Frank."

"Come in, dear!"

Travers opened the door. His wife, in a low-cut gown of gray lace, turned from the dressing table and came toward him. "Oh, Frank—" she cried, "did you see him?"

Her husband nodded. He placed a matter-of-fact kiss on her forehead. "I did," he announced. "Everything's settled! He's leaving Monday night!"

Mrs. Travers raised anxious gray eyes. "And the girl—?" she asked.

"The girl!" Travers repeated with an unpleasant smile. "She'll be gone in a week!"

SALE OF WORK AT KOWLOON.

SUCCESSFUL FUNCTION BY WOMEN'S GUILD.

The Women's Guild attached to the Union Church, Kowloon, held a highly successful sale of work on the playing ground of Diocesan Girls School on Saturday afternoon.

About a half-dozen stalls were laid out with reasonable goods; wool, lace, needle-work and cushions predominating. Coconut shies were well patronized, while brisk business was also done at the ice-cream and aerated waters stall and in the tea and refreshment department.

The sale was opened at 3 p.m. by Mrs. R.M. Dyer, who, in a few well-chosen words, expressed the pleasure it gave her, and she wished the function all success.

The Chairman (Rev. Frank Short) congratulated the Women's Guild on past efforts and those to come and tendered to them the thanks of Union Church.

A hearty vote of thanks was expressed to Mrs. Dyer on the call of Mr. A.W. Ingram.

In the absence of Mrs. D.F. Warren who is away from the Colony, the duties devolving on her as President of the Guild, were assumed by Mrs. A.M. Holland, Vice-President. Assisting her were Mrs. Forsyth, Mrs. Groundwater and Mrs. S. Nelson, who were responsible for much of the work behind the sale.

The Helpers.

A list of the stalls and helpers follows:

Work Stall.—Messdames A. W. Ingram and Short, and the Misses R. Ingram and McCall.

Toy and Fancy Goods.—Messdames Forsyth, Cornelius, and Miss Groundwater.

"Woolies"—Mrs. Wm. Johnston, J. Macintosh, Scott, and Sweeney.

White Elephant and Side Shows.—The Young People's Society.

Sweet Stall.—Messdames Watson and Orr.

Ice and Cold Drinks.—Messdames Lawrence and Sturgeon.

Bean Tubs.—Mrs. Spittles.

Refreshments.—Messdames McKelvie, Morrison, Brown, Dick, Macintosh, and Senior; Mr. Eric Woods, and the Misses Mason, Brown and Adams.

The big limousine paused long enough for Mark to step to the sidewalk, then darted away. Thirty minutes later F. M. Travers was relinquishing his hat and coat to a servant.

"Where's Mrs. Travers?" he asked.

"I think she's in her room, sir. She said dinner would be at 7:30."

ADMIRAL HELPS TO LOWER LIFE BOATS.WHEN PETERSFIELD RAN AGROUND.

Only sterling co-operation all round prevented loss of life attending the wreck of H.M.S. Petersfield on Tung Yung Island, near Foochow on Thursday morning, and the Commander-in-Chief of the China Squadron, Admiral Sir Howard Kelly, took a hand in lowering the boats that conveyed those on board to the shore. With the Admiral and the Petersfield's men on board, H.M.S. Suffolk arrived in Hongkong yesterday morning.

The Petersfield struck in the early morning and although handicapped by a pitch black night and dense fog, all hands turned out irrespective of station. While the engine room staff strove to keep the electric service functioning to maintain the wireless, Sir Howard Kelly supervised the abandoning of the ship and even assisted in lowering the lifeboats.

The dangers of shipwreck were overcome without a single injury, due to the strenuous work of all, despite almost continuous duty. Very little in the way of the men's personal effects was lost.

Fog Encountered.

The Petersfield slipped out from Shanghai early on Monday morning, bound for Foochow, where a call was scheduled before going to Hongkong. Fine weather replaced the earlier fog and the voyage was without incident until noon on Tuesday when a message was flashed out from the Steep Island Lighthouse to go to the assistance of a junk in distress. Choppy seas prevented the craft being taken in tow, but the crew was taken off and landed at the first fishing village.

A fresh north-easterly was sweeping the seas and owing to the weather conditions, the Petersfield was compelled to drop anchor at 4.10 p.m. on Tuesday. The vessel spent the night at anchor and early on Wednesday continued the trip to Foochow.

Fog set in during the day to make the task more difficult, and in view of the heavy weather and the exceptionally dark night, the speed was eased at 1 a.m. on Thursday. Carefully the ship picked her way through the fog with the crew busy taking soundings. Rocks were sighted on the port side about 2.40 a.m. and almost simultaneously came a jar that shook the vessel. The engines were immediately ordered full speed astern but a handicap was encountered here as the port engine had been disabled by the propeller striking a rock.

Heavy Seas.

The ship was on the weather side of the island of Tung Yung, broadside on, and securely wedged in the rocks, with shoals showing on both sides, and heavy seas beating against the vessel. For two hours all hands turned to working strenuously to bring the ship off, but it was realised that the vessel was so severely damaged that it was beyond aid and preparations were made to abandon ship. Armed guards were placed in the boats for protection but it was soon found that the villagers on the island were by no means hostile. Lady Kelly, Miss Kelly and a Chinese amah, the only women on board, were in the first boat and were followed by the Chinese servants and mess boys. All available provisions were also landed.

A fresh wind was blowing and

CONSIGNEES' NOTICES.

LOST.

The public is hereby notified that a Bill of Lading for 3,075 sacks flour and 1 package empty bags ex s.s. "Talping" arrived 6th November, 1931, marked "SEAGULL" has been lost and is warned against negotiating this Bill of Lading which is declared null and void.

whipping up the seas over the rocks so that after the crew was landed it was found impossible to attempt any salvage work.

The Petersfield had been badly holed in the impact but although the ship was bumping badly the engine room department stuck to their duty and did well in keeping the electric lights in operation until daylight. This was an important factor in the maintenance of the wireless telegraph, for although the aerial had been damaged, it was repaired and wireless communication was maintained until daylight.

Assistance Arrives.

The first response to the S.O.S. signals came from the German steamer Derfflinger which made all speed to the spot and arrived about 7.10 a.m. The Empress of Asia arrived about an hour later, and information came through that the Suffolk would be in the scene at 5 p.m.

Immediately the Empress of Asia hove in sight, Lady Kelly, Miss Kelly and the amah were taken in the Petersfield's motor boat from the island. The crew stayed on the island.

The efficiency and traditions of the British Navy were well illustrated in the despatch with which the Suffolk reached the scene. When she was ordered to the scene she was only 70 miles from Hongkong and 370 miles from the wreck. Although they had very little time to work up a high speed, the engine room department strenuously and reached full speed in about an hour and maintained it for over 12 hours, reaching the wreck within five minutes of the time originally scheduled.

Transfer by Searchlight.

No time was lost in transferring the Petersfield's men on the island to the Suffolk immediately on her arrival, the work being carried out with the assistance of searchlights from the Suffolk. All the men were transferred to the cruiser with the exception of the armed guard which passed through a long period of duty, remaining on duty from 2.40 a.m. to the time of the grounding, until noon on the following day, when they were taken on the Suffolk.

Friday morning broke clearer than the previous days and with the sea calmer, parties were sent on to the Petersfield to salvage the valuable equipment.

The men on the Petersfield did not lose much of their kit and no injuries were sustained. The Suffolk left the spot on Friday afternoon leaving the wrecked ship well awash at high tide and with the upper deck showing at low tide.

MR. L. S. AMERY'S
NEW PLEA.

BANK RESERVES.

London, Nov. 16.
A powerful plea that the leading central banks be authorised to include silver as part of their currency reserves up to some fixed proportion of the total, is made by the Hon. Mr. L. S. Amery in the Financial Times.

It will be unnecessary, he contends, to re-establish any complete scheme of bimetallicism for even were silver only held at the market price, the mere fact the banks were holding considerable volumes of it, would tend to maintain a reasonably high and stable price for the metal.

This would be helpful in counteracting the effects of the maldistribution of gold, and would also correct the impending deficiency of gold. The inclusion of a fixed ratio in the scheme would secure permanent exchange stability with the Far East, and would, at the same, help India.

MAN BOUND OVER AT KOWLOON.

Ngan Ying, who was found sleeping in the cook's quarters at the Kowloon Fire Station when a search was made following a robbery at the Station on Saturday morning, was again produced at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning before Mr. Fraser.

The prosecution was satisfied that the defendant had nothing to do with the robbery. He had a claimant working at the Fire Station as a fireman. He was visiting this claimant on Friday and stayed there until it was too late to leave, with the result that he stayed overnight.

His Worship bound him over in the sum of $25.

WOMEN ABOARD DUTCH STEAMER.

Two women, described as of ill-repute, were charged at the Marine Court before Commr. Holo this morning with boarding the Dutch steamer Tisaraoca without the permission of the master or the officer on duty yesterday.

Sergeant Riddell, who prosecuted, said the steamer was lying alongside the A.P.C. Wharf at Quarry Bay at the time. Defendants were found on board, and it was discovered that they had no permission to board the vessel.

His Worship imposed a fine of $50 in each case.

"DEAR BRUTUS."

CLEVER PRODUCTION

BY THE A.D.C.

A BIG SUCCESS.

Those who are not too familiar with Sir J. M. Barrie's works, might well be excused if they look upon his play "Dear Brutus," which is now being produced by the Hongkong Amateur Dramatic Company, as something slightly fantastic. The players themselves give one the impression that they are rather incredulous about it, and this air of unreality has its value, inasmuch as it prevents them from attempting to make the story stereotyped.

Frankly, "Dear Brutus," which attracted a large audience at the opening night on Saturday, is a well produced and acted comedy, with but few blemishes. And as the faults are not incapable of being remedied, the succeeding presentations can be expected to satisfy even the most carping critic.

Barrie has given the players some difficult and complex characters to express. The cunning Loh, with his ostentatious foolery, behind which he masks a mind from which evolves the scheme for giving his guests the greatest experience of their lives: the amorous, self-conceited and priggish Purdie, the pathetically joyous "Might-have been" Margaret. All of these demand extremely delicate treatment in order to give to them their full meaning and value, and because they receive this attention by the capable members of the A.D.C., "Dear Brutus" must remain one of the most successful productions in the long history of the Club.

Betty Fair can boast of one of the most impressive debuts ever made by a local player. As Margaret, the would-have-been child of the artist, had he lived his life in the manner he really desired, she revealed remarkable histrionic abilities, and throughout the long scene with her father in the second act.

when she had to pronounce naive childish philosophy, and interpret the characteristics of an "unusual" child, she held the audience in a manner which signalled a brilliant success.

Splendid work came from Sydney West as the eccentric old Loh, who weaved the charms (?) of a second chance in life to all his guests, while Maurice Barton as Purdie, whose complex (and vaguely defined) emotions of love, made one feel almost uncomfortable, was one of the outstanding players.

Alec Gray is a newcomer to the local footlights, but now that we have seen his capabilities, we shall be looking forward to his next appearance. His characterisation of Dearth, the "might-have-been" artist, who missed love and success because he took the wrong turning (though the author does not explain if he did so intentionally), was quite masterly, and he was perfectly admirable in the woodland scene.

The supporting cast, which was not a really supporting cast as they all stood out, in their respective lights, as artists of no mean ability, fully came up to expectations. Eric Brooks, as the butler, was a trifle strained. It was a pity, too, that the producer allowed the whole cast to "come round" from experiencing their Second Chance of Life, in precisely the same manner, the same gestures and the same "Where am I?" sort of expression.

The settings were up to tip-top standard, particularly the second scene in the "Wood of the Second Chance."

The incidental music was not a success, and a better choice of selections can well be made for the next four performances.

Mr. Rupert Foster must, however, be congratulated on the success of his production. While he may have failed in a few points, he has put brilliant direction into the better part of the show, and he, and his public, can look back at "Dear Brutus" with feelings of real satisfaction.

There will be further performances on Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights and a matinee on Wednesday at 5.15 p.m. —S.A.G.
